

Soviets Angle For Portugal Seaport

From Press Reports
Lisbon, Portugal — The Kremlin, in its first overt bid to take advantage of the leftward course of Portugal's government, has asked this NATO country to make a seaport available to the Soviet Atlantic fishing fleet, official sources said Friday.

There was no immediate comment from the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow or the State Department in Washington.

If the port facility is granted, it would mean that Soviet trawlers would be based about 150 miles from NATO's Iberian Atlantic Naval Command. The command has responsibility for the security of the approaches to the Gibraltar Strait, gateway to the Mediterranean Sea and the Middle East.

In the view of some Portuguese officials, an agreement would constitute a major breach of the Atlantic alliance's security on the approaches to the Mediterranean and in the South Atlantic.

Portugal was rocked by a military coup last April that unseated the dictatorial regime of Premier Marcello Caetano. Since that time the Communists have been pushing hard for power.

Premier Vasco Goncalves, identified with the radical wing of the armed forces, was reported in favor of granting the Soviet request, but others in the government were said to be urging caution. President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who met with President Ford in Washington last fall, said on his return to Lisbon that Portugal was still committed to remaining in the Western camp.

The Soviet request came to light at a moment when a leftist campaign, both in Portugal and abroad, was being organized against NATO and the United States as a result of NATO naval maneuvers that began off Portugal Wednesday.

The exercise, called "Locked Gate 75," is being carried out by naval units of Portugal, United States, West Germany, The Netherlands, Britain and France.

As the 29 surface ships and six submarines deployed off the coast, sources said a Soviet fishing trawler had moved into the area and appeared to be observing the mock hunt for Warsaw Pact submarines along the approaches to Gibraltar.

The sources who reported the Kremlin proposal gave this account:

The Soviets are interested in using facilities at Figueira da Foz, a fishing port at the mouth of the Mondego River about 150 miles up the Atlantic seaboard from Lisbon. NATO's Iberian Atlantic Command is just outside Lisbon in Oeiras.

The Soviets made the request last week when the Portuguese Communist Party had just emerged victorious from a cabinet debate over a labor bill that favored Communist control of Portugal's unions.

The move to establish a single labor confederation was approved by the government, and ever since, the Socialists have been warning of an antidemocratic upsurge by the Communists that could lead to a leftist dictatorship and possible civil war.

The Soviet timing may have been based on the Kremlin's assessment of Communist strength in Portugal. Soviet diplomats are pressing the Portuguese government for a quick decision.

The Soviet request was transmitted directly to the fisheries department of the Ministry of Economy, then to the Interministerial Commission on Soviet Relations under Premier Vasco dos Santos Goncalves. A treaty was reported to be in preparation, but because of the political and strategic implications it is expected to meet strong opposition in the cabinet.

Officially, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs said it could not speak about matters that were the concern of the Interministerial Commission. The commission includes Alvaro Cunhal, secretary general of the Portuguese Communist Party and a minister without portfolio, and Foreign Minister Mario Soares, secretary general of the Socialist Party.

In the past two weeks, the two have emerged in open political warfare with Premier Goncalves taking Cunhal's side.

Kelly Youngest Wizard Of Auctioneer's Chant

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer
If the beds could bid, Kelly Lorchick thinks he would, sell his fair share of goods.

For when he's not facing a real crowd, this young auctioneer practices his vigorous chant in front of the furniture, picking his bids from among the chairs and tables of the used furniture shop where he works.

Kelly knows he's got a lot of catching up to do if he expects to match some of the snappy wizardry of the more experienced "colonels" who call for the bids at auctions.

At 15 Kelly is one of the youngest auctioneers around.

In fact, he's the youngest ever to graduate from the Missouri auctioneers' school he attended last summer.

Rattling off a few high-speed tongue-twisters for starters, Kelly proved that he can perform what he has been practicing. "You just have to know how to count," Kelly said, modestly simplifying the tricks of the trade.

But he admitted that even if you know how to count, it's not until you get up in front of a crowd that you find yourself tongue-tied.

He thought there was "no way" he could ever see himself standing before a group of anxious bidders, waiting to be parted from their money.

Then he got a chance at the auctions held by his employer, Capitol Realty Co., and he knew he could do it.

"I know I'm shy, but when it comes to this (auctioneering), I feel I've done it all my life," the Plus X sophomore said. Although he admits to "butterflies" at the start, Kelly says "after I get into it and get going, I feel at ease."

He's done the actual calling (mostly for "little stuff") half a dozen times and has served as clerk and ring man (one who accepts the bids) on other occasions.

When he's not working an auction as part of his job, Kelly goes on his own to watch other auctioneers' techniques and to get some idea of what the items are worth.

He's observed that, from an auctioneer's point of view, it's "sorta hard to talk about stuff that ain't any good."

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lorchick, 1125 S. 25, Kelly hopes to have his own auction house some day.

"I always thought auctioneers were farmers," Kelly confided. "I never dreamed of being one."

IF BEDS COULD BID . . . thinks Kelly.

Beardsley Flees Missouri Officers

By JIM DeCAMP and GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writers

One of the men wanted in the assault of a Lincoln police officer Friday was headed south out of St. Joseph, Mo., in an unmarked police car carrying three hostages early Saturday morning, according to St. Joseph police.

Lincoln Police Officer Jeff Olson was forced at gunpoint to strip, and was gagged and handcuffed to a bathroom pipe shortly after 8 a.m. Friday at 633 S. 17th while investigating a hit and run accident.

St. Joseph Police Officer Edmund Schimmel said the man believed to be James Beardsley, 22, of Lincoln had two unidentified young women and St. Joseph assistant chief of detectives Tom Johnson as hostages.

St. Joseph police and the Missouri State Patrol eventually lost the car between St. Joseph and Kansas City after trying to keep it under surveillance at a distance.

Robert Arrested

Beardsley's brother Robert, 24, was arrested by St. Joseph police following a brawl earlier in a tavern near the bus station.

The two women were taken hostage when James Beardsley got on a Continental Trailways bus which carried 16 to 17 people.

A Trailways agent said the Omaha-Kansas City bus was preparing for boarding and was due to leave when the man rushed on, pushed the driver aside and grabbed the young woman.

Police reported he was persuaded to release all other passengers.

Beardsley demanded and received shortly after 10 p.m. an unmarked car and safe passage out of the city.

Lincoln Police Chief Joseph T. Carroll, Assistant Chief Dale Adams and Capt. Roger LaPage flew to St. Joseph Friday night with Beardsley's sister, Mrs. Delores Krieger of 614 S. 19th, in an attempt to get him to surrender.

Attempt Fails

St. Joseph police said Mrs. Krieger tried to talk to her brother over the police radio but he would not respond.

Beardsley was reportedly armed with two handguns and 12 rounds of ammunition.

Police sealed off a two-to-three-block diameter area around the bus station and snipers were placed on surrounding buildings.

Police said the Beardsleys were believed to be heroin addicts and were considered very dangerous.

St. Joseph police went to the Silver Dollar tavern after they received information that the Beardsleys might be in the city.

According to reports one of the brothers got the drop on one of the officers as he entered the bar and pointed his gun between the officer's eyes.

James Escapes Tavern

As more police officers came to the scene James Beardsley ran across the street and boarded the bus.

St. Joseph police said at one point Beardsley was preparing to drive off in the bus with his hostages, and an order went out to all authorities not to stop the bus. The suspect apparently changed his mind.

Lincoln police said Pat Trimble, 22, of Lincoln, who drove the Beardsleys to St. Joseph was being held by Missouri authorities.

Officer Olson said he went to the apartment house during a hit and run investigation and talked to a man using the name Robert Brown and was later joined by a man using the name James Brown.

The conversation led to Olson requesting both men to accompany him to the police station so the victim in the accident could verify their claim that they were not involved, he said.

The men agreed, Olson said, and went to the closet to put on shirts.

Then one of the men "came from behind a closet door" with a pistol in his hand, pointing it at him, Olson said.

He said the man who called himself Robert told the other man to remove Olson's revolver and gun belt.

"I had to remain cool. I did not want to provoke anything that would provoke the party further," Olson said.

After forcing him to disrobe, the men gagged Olson, tied his feet and handcuffed him to a bathroom pipe.

After several minutes, Olson said, he was able to dislodge the gag and called for help.

Two men living in the building broke open the locked door after a woman heard his shouts, Olson said. The men then called police.

Campaign Finance Plan Not Opposed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Ralph Kelly's proposal to require state office candidates to funnel all of their campaign financial transactions through a single bank account cleared its legislative committee hearing Friday without opposition.

The bill, LB182, which would also create a state campaign finance commission, was held by the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee for later action.

A similar measure sponsored by the Grand Island senator led a tortured life in the 1974 Legislature before it was finally killed.

This time Kelly attracted support from Common Cause and no opposition testimony as he launched a bill on its second journey through the legislative process.

Informed Voters
Periodic reporting of the candidate's campaign financial transactions would

Legislature stories
on Pages 3, 10

"allow voters to be aware of (funding factors) before election day," Kelly said.

The bill would provide "an easy audit trail" through one bank account for the public to view the transactions, he said.

And, he suggested, it should "ensure continuation of clean campaigning in Nebraska."

Speaking for Common Cause of Nebraska, Marge Schlitt of Lincoln urged additions to the bill designed to give the new campaign finance commission more power.

The five-member commission, which would oversee campaign finance reporting, should be given powers to investigate apparent violations and report its findings to law enforcement authorities, Ms. Schlitt said.

It should also have the power to administer oaths, subpoena witnesses, take evidence and issue cease-and-desist orders, she suggested.

Other Candidates

Common Cause, she said, would also like to see the finance reporting bill applied to other candidates for public office and to committees which are organized for political purposes, including support or opposition to constitutional amendments, referenda and initiative proposals.

As written, LB182 only applies to candidates for elective state constitutional offices.

"The only thing that concerns me is the possibility of a witch hunt" by a powerful commission, Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha told Ms. Schlitt.

Both Stoney and Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston told Kelly they believe that current reporting to the secretary of state under the campaign practices act may be sufficient.

Inclusion of a commission in his bill recognized 1974 objections to his proposal without such an independent agency, he said.

The committee killed a bill to increase the terms of county commissioners and county supervisors from four to six years.

That proposal, LB135, sponsored by Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, was supported by the Nebraska Association of County Officials as a measure which would provide "more continuity" in the office.

Manatee May Be Pregnant Mermaid

Miami (UPI) — The Miami Seaquarium is hoping it has a pregnant mermaid on its hands.

The mermaid is a 1,200-pound manatee, or seaworm, named "Juliet." She and her mate, Romeo, have been residents of the Seaquarium for 17 years.

Seacows are thought to be the source of the legend of the mermaid. Many believe that what ancient mariners thought were half-women, half fish, were actually the huge mammals.

If Juliet is pregnant, it will be one of the few recorded instances in history that a manatee has given birth in captivity.

Seaquarium staff members are keeping a round-the-clock watch on the manatee and said she has put on 200 pounds in the last six weeks and has a large bulge in the stomach.

They also said her appetite has increased to 35 heads of lettuce each day.

Clark said scientists are not certain of the gestation period of the manatee, and there is no certain way of determining when a baby seaworm might be born.

He said, however, the offspring would weigh between 25 and 45 pounds.

Eritreans Attack

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Waves of Eritrean insurgents using mortars and bazookas attacked three Ethiopian military installations for two hours Friday night in the provincial capital of Asmara, reports reaching Addis Ababa said.

The assault was a major escalation of the Eritrean insurgents' 12-year war for independence. Observers said it could be the start of a long-expected showdown.

Omaha Teacher Wins Title As Teacher Of Year

Gunnar Horn, English department chairman at Omaha Benson High School, will receive the Nebraska Teacher of the Year award Thursday at the Nebraska Club in Lincoln.

The award will be presented by the State Board of Education president R. Jerry Hargitt of Omaha.

Since 1937, Horn has been department head in addition to teaching journalism courses and acting as Benson's newspaper advisor.

The first journalism major at the then Municipal University of Omaha, now the University of Nebraska at Omaha, Horn graduated in 1934 and taught in several Omaha schools, including South High School, before coming to Benson.

As Nebraska teacher of the year, Horn is a nominee in the national teacher of the year contest.

Tanker Rammed, Burns On East Coast

MARCUS HOOK, Pa. (AP) — A tanker unloading 17 million gallons of crude oil at a Delaware River refinery early Friday was rammed by a ship laden with chemicals, setting off more than a dozen explosions that shot flames 400 feet into the air and killed at least two persons.

Fire, smoke and noxious fumes injured 35, including 12 firemen. Twenty-five of the 46 believed aboard the burning tanker, S.S. Corinthos, were unaccounted for.

It was not immediately known whether some of the missing, among them the captain, Gostas Marinos, his wife, son and sister, may have been on shore leave.

By Friday evening explosions throughout the day had split the rammed vessel amidships and poured oil slicks, some the size of a city block, into the river.

"It was the inside of hell," said policeman George Hansell, among the first at the scene after the 754-foot Corinthos was struck broadside by the Edgar M. Queeny, an American ship apparently attempting to make a steering change near the BP Oil Corp. dock.

"It failed and collided," said Harry Schaefer, general superintendent for BP, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Ohio. He said some 300,000 barrels of Algerian oil — about 12 million gallons — were still in the Corinthos' hold when it exploded.

Flames shot 400 feet into the air, smoke and noxious fumes covered an area about the size of a football field, and thousands of gallons of burning oil spilled into the river.

The Coast Guard moved in with a pollution strike crew to contain the spill. Glass in windows and doors of hundreds of homes and buildings was shattered by the blasts. About 350 families were evacuated to neighboring communities from this refinery town of 3,500 located 10 miles south of Philadelphia.

The Coast Guard ordered a marine board of investigation to convene Tuesday to investigate the cause of the collision.

There were no reports of injuries to the crew of the 680-foot Queeny.

It was carrying phenol, a gaseous form of carbolic acid which is used as a feed stock base, and other chemicals, some of which had just been picked up from a Monsanto Co. plant across the river in New Jersey.

First reports had indicated that fumes leaking from the Queeny had overcome fire fighters and other rescue workers, but officials later said the reports were untrue.

The Corinthos, registered in Liberia but carrying a predominantly Greek crew, shook violently in the explosions. Its bow settled into the mud, and the stern and midsection blazed.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the fire would be allowed to burn until all the crude oil aboard the ship was consumed. Federal Environmental Protection Agency officials said there appeared to be no major river pollution danger but that the situation would be carefully monitored.

Michael Pappas, manager of the BP refinery, said the explosions caused no damage to the refinery, located several hundred yards from the dock. There is a tank farm about 100 feet away, where crude is stored en route to the refinery, and a warehouse where tons of petroleum products are stored, including 56,000 barrels of crude.

Film Star Liz Taylor Complains Of Back Pain

London (AP) — Film star Elizabeth Taylor complained of severe back pains Friday when she arrived from Los Angeles at London's Heathrow Airport.

Miss Taylor was helped off the plane by its captain, then walked unaided to a car and was driven to London where she is staying with friends before going on to Moscow where she is to appear in a movie.

There was no immediate explanation what caused the pains.

Giscard d'Estaing Shuffles French Cabinet

The New York Times

Paris — The Elysee Palace announced the first French cabinet reshuffle Friday, eight months after President Giscard d'Estaing took office.

The major ministries affected were defense, post and telegraph, and agriculture. Although the premier and top cabinet members recently issued firm denials, cabinet changes had been rumored for some weeks and were expected to be somewhat more sweeping and politically significant than took place.

The new defense minister is Yvon Bourges, 53, a former minister of commerce and an early Gaullist. He replaced Jacques Soufflet, a member of the Gaullist Party, who had been widely criticized for his inability to revive the armed forces' sagging morale.

Bourges has a reputation for being a man of firm authority, but the decision to tighten up the tone of defense was even more clearly reflected in the appointment of Lt. Gen. Marcel Bigeard as his state secretary, equivalent to undersecretary.

Another unsurprising shift was the replacement of Pierre Lelong, state secretary for posts, telephones and telegraphs, by Aymar Achille-Fould, vice-president of one of the centrist parties in the government coalition.

Lelong had been widely criticized for his handling of the long postal strike last fall.

Achille-Fould, 49, was a state secretary at the defense ministry in the last cabinet before Giscard d'Estaing took office.

Norbert Segard, presently state secretary for foreign trade, was promoted to minister of foreign trade, a new title in the French government and explicitly intended to show Paris's keen interest in developing exports, the Elysee spokesman said.

It was Segard, 52, who sent to Cairo earlier this month to negotiate the list of industrial projects that were discussed during President Anwar El-Sadat's visit here this week.

Jean-Francois Deniau, 45, a former Common Market commissioner, was named to the new post of state secretary for agriculture. The Elysee spokesman said this was to ease the burden of Agriculture Minister Christian Bonnet in the intense series of negotiations now beginning.

'Superovulating' Cows Suggested

(c) Chicago Daily News

New York — Suggestions ranging from making human food out of corn stalks to creating "superovulating" cows capable of producing 20 to 30 fertilizable eggs a year were suggested by scientists Friday as ways to cope with the world food shortage.

Biologist Stanley P. Leibo of Oak Ridge National Laboratory said it is possible to adapt fundamental research in embryology and improve the entire approach to animal husbandry.

"A superior cow could be superovulated so that her normal yield of one ovum per cycle is increased to 20 or 30 ova per cycle," said Leibo. "Her eggs would be removed and fertilized in vitro (test tube) with sperm from a superior bull. These superior cattle embryos would be frozen for shipment to other areas or countries and thawed out and transferred into ordinary healthy foster cows who would carry the superior calves to term.

'3-To-4-Fold Increase'

"In other words, mammalian embryology will soon offer the cattle breeder the ability to produce in a single year from one cow an entire herd of 20 or 30 superior cattle. This would represent a 3-to-4-fold increase in the total lifetime output of calves by that cow if bred naturally."

An agricultural scientist, Gary H. Heichel of New Haven, Conn., said it is potentially possible to grow corn stalks without the corn that would be as rich as sugar cane.

Plant juices from alfalfa forage yield a concentrate that is 40 to 50% protein and suitable for human food after refining, he told the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Meat Extender

Vegetable protein made from soybeans already is being marketed as a meat extender, said Heichel, a researcher at the Connecticut Agricultural Research Station.

He said ways must be found to develop foods that use lesser amounts of energy to produce them. Apples and grapes barely return the energy they consume in production, and melons, tomatoes and cauliflower return only a quarter to three quarters as much.

Corn and sorghum, on the other hand, produce four to five calories of food energy for every calorie of energy used in production.

Energy use on the farm involves not only petroleum, and electricity, but such aids as fertilizers and pesticides.

Soviets Revalue Ruble

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet government Friday revalued the ruble upward against the U.S. dollar by 3%.

The dollar now is quoted at 70 50 kopeks as against 73 kopeks last month. This means it takes almost $1 42 to buy a ruble as against $1 37 previously.

Western economists say the exchange rate set by the Soviets is arbitrary and does not reflect the real worth of the ruble, which is not legally quoted on free markets.

There was no indication that the new exchange rate was connected with the Soviet-American trade dispute.

From Press Reports

Los Angeles — The Los Angeles Police Department, launching its biggest investigation since the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or the Manson case, described the city's skid row slasher as a human "jackal" who "loves no one."

The body of a man with his throat cut was found in a Hollywood apartment Friday and police said he "positively" was the ninth victim of the "slasher" who has terrorized the skid row area of the city for two months.

"We have no suspects," said a police spokesman.

Police Lt. Dan Cooke released a "psychological profile" of the killer along with a police sketch of how he may look.

"Our investigators are grasping at straws, and this may help," Cooke said. "Some of them have had to be ordered to go home. They have gone days without sleep working on the case."

Police Chief Ed Davis assigned Asst. Chief Daryl Gates to take personal charge and "the entire department is at his disposal," Cooke said.

He indicated it was not a usual kind of knife that was used to slash each victim from ear to ear. "We've already had three people confess," Cooke said.

The highlights of the psychological profile described the killer as a "jackal type, who lives alone, a hermit existence. He comes out of his hole only to do these horrible things." The profile said he may be deformed or crippled and most likely is sexually impotent.

London (UPI) — The 16th Duke of Norfolk, Bernard Marmaduke Fitzalan-Howard, whose hereditary position as earl marshal and chief butler of England gave him the right to arrange state ceremonies from coronations to royal marriages and state funerals, died in his sleep Friday. He was 66. The duke, who had suffered from heart trouble for several years, was the premier peer and Roman Catholic of the realm.

Indian-White Tensions Mounting

Gresham, Wis. (UPI) — An additional 350 National Guardsmen were called to duty Friday night to quell mounting tensions between whites and Indians over the month-long Indian occupation of the Alexian Brothers novitate near here.

The extra troops were called out after the Indian occupants, bolstered by the arrival of actor Marlon Brando, ignored a noon deadline for accepting or rejecting the latest settlement proposal from the Roman Catholic order which owns the abbey. Brando said the owners, the Alexian Brothers, were ready to make a new offer.

Meanwhile, exchanges became more heated and area whites threatened to take matters into their own hands to drive members of the "Menominee Warrior Society" out of the novitate. Sympathetic Indians staged two separate protests in support of the occupation, and Indians in nearby communities pledged to help defend those inside the abbey.

A National Guard spokesman said the additional troops would bring the total number of guardsmen ringing the abbey to 750, the most on hand since the armed band of Indians seized the 64-room building on the morning of Jan. 1.

Area whites warned they were planning some action for Saturday to get the Indians out of the abbey. They would not reveal their specific plans, however.

Dennis Banks, a national American Indian Movement leader, said Indians would come in from around the country to "take corrective action to balance it out" if the whites succeeded in getting through National Guard lines.

Panel OKs Tech College Funds

By The Associated Press
The Legislature's Appropriations Committee has decided to provide a $5.9 million deficiency appropriation for technical community colleges in a bill also dealing with homestead exemption funding.

Eldon Ehrlich, head of the fiscal staff, was instructed to include that amount for the state's two-year colleges in a bill being drafted to provide $2.9 million deficiency money for the homestead exemption program.

Also included in that bill will be small deficiency appropriations for the Commission on the Status of Women and two other agencies.

The tech schools, through Robert Schlegler, executive director of the State Board of Technical Community Colleges, sought the money because the State Supreme Court struck down what it said amounted to an unconstitutional statewide property tax which funded the schools.

Ehrlich said the deficiency bill may direct that the $5.9 million be distributed in three or four monthly payments instead of by quarterly payments, which would have given each school a jump sum for the rest of the fiscal year.

The committee also heard testimony from the State Education Department, which seeks a deficiency appropriation of $4.9 million to cover special education programs for the handicapped, mandated by last year's LB403.

That would bring the estimated expenditure for the program in fiscal 1974-75 to 713.6 million.

The panel also heard from S. H. Brauer Jr., lobbyist for the Nebraska School Improvement Association, and an attorney for Brauer, that LB403 requirements are not being followed.

A controversy has developed because in some instances LB403 money has gone to school districts that did not qualify for it, and in some cases has gone to Educational Service Units, although the law says it must go to the school districts first.

Sen. Burbach For Changes In Procedure

In a three-page letter to his colleagues Friday, Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, speaker of the legislature, proposed changes in floor procedure.

Under the proposals which will be discussed Tuesday, Burbach would prepare daily and weekly calendars for senators. Related bills would be grouped so persons interested in specific areas could avoid coming to the statehouse too often.

Burbach would be responsible for the motion to adjourn each day.

The letter said that less controversial bills would be considered on Fridays, and that if the legislature does not wish to meet on Fridays, that determination will be made no later than Tuesday.

"I believe that if we are really seriously interested in moving our floor procedure without affecting due deliberation, and if we cooperatively work together on this end we can hopefully finish our session with a minimum of bills left on the board," Burbach said in the letter.

Scottsbluff County The Uncameral Thursday decided not to proceed with Carpenter's challenge of Sen. William Nichol's election from the 48th district.

Omaha Sen. Eugene Mahoney had suggested having the secretary of state keep the data, but Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner amended his motion to have the clerk hold it.

Meet Star Carrier Roger Fagler

His paper route helps him to get the things he needs and wants says Roger Fagler Jr. of Lincoln.

A carrier salesman for The Lincoln Star for a year and a half, Roger saves half of his profits and uses the rest for hunting equipment and model railroad additions.

Described by his supervisor as an excellent carrier and a young man who is likely to reach any goals he may set for himself, Roger feels that some of the most important rewards of his route are the many new friends he has made among his customers.

In his spare time, Roger likes to go hunting and has been on several fishing trips to Minnesota.

He also likes to swim and has two rabbits, a dog, a cat and numerous fish.

As to the future, the Claire McPhee student would like to become a dentist some day.

Roger Fagler Jr.

Teachers Bill Advanced

By The Associated Press
A bill which would protect outstate school teachers from being fired without just cause was given first round approval by the Legislature Friday, but not until it was amended to include a two-year probationary period.

Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson's LB82 was also amended to remove school superintendents from the protection that would be extended to teachers.

The bill would allow school boards to dismiss a teacher simply in order to reduce the size of the teaching staff. But after surviving the probation period, a teacher could be fired only for "just cause."

The amended bill was finally advanced on a 35-5 vote.

The Legislature rejected on a 25-17 vote Omaha Sen. James Dickinson's effort to have consideration of the bill delayed 10 days. Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, chairman of the Education Committee, said delaying the bill could foul up contract negotiations between teachers and school boards.

The bill stemmed from a recent Supreme Court decision which said only Omaha and Lincoln teachers were protected by tenure. Other teachers could be fired for any reason, or for no reason, the high court said, since there was no statutory protection existing for them.

Death Sentence In Rape Bill

By The Associated Press
Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said he would introduce a bill Tuesday with a mandatory death penalty for rapists if one of their victims dies.

DeCamp said the bill would allow the judge no alternative if it was determined that a rape victim died.

The bill would also protect the victim if the rapist was killed during his attack.

Defense attorneys could ask a victim about her past sexual conduct only after a judge determined questions were relevant by conducting a closed hearing attended by the defendant, the victim and their attorneys.

The law also states that the victim does not have to prove resistance "if it is reasonably apparent that such resistance would have endangered the life or health of the victim."

The bill would establish a division in the attorney general's office to investigate and prosecute rape cases.

Local law enforcement authorities would be required to report rapes to the division.

The bill sets a penalty of one to 50 years for forcible rape and serious bodily injury. Without serious bodily injury, the maximum penalty would be 15 years.

An offense called third degree sexual assault which consists of sexual contact with a person under 13 years of age, would carry a maximum penalty of three years.

Sodomy would also carry a maximum penalty of 50 years. All crimes have a minimum sentence of one year.

A lie detector test and a psychiatric examination of the victim could serve to eliminate the requirement for corroboration of her testimony. The bill provides for medical or psychiatric treatment of rapists if the court determines that it would prevent the recurrence of sexual assault.

Early drafts of the bill contained a provision which would have allowed the court to order castration, but DeCamp said he would delete that provision before introducing the bill.

Retirement System To Be Offered

By The Associated Press
Legislation creating a uniform retirement system for all public employees is scheduled to be introduced in the Unicameral Monday.

A copy of the 75-page Nebraska public employees retirement act, which will be introduced by the Retirement Committee, was made available to the AP.

The bill will be introduced without a figure specifying what per cent of salary State Patrolmen and other safety employees would have to contribute to their own retirement.

Rather than just throwing in a figure, we are going to wait until we can do some more study, said Sen. William H. Hasebrook of West Point, committee chairman.

On Page 27 the bill simply reads: "The contribution percentage for calendar years 1976 and 1977 shall equal per cent of salary for safety members who do not contribute to federal Social Security."

Safety employees (police and firemen) covered by Social Security would contribute 70% of whatever those who are not covered must provide.

Beginning with the 1978 calendar year the contribution percentage, whatever it is finally set at, will be redetermined annually by the retirement board.

The retirement benefit for safety employees would be figured as 2% of an employee's highest five-year average salary multiplied by their years of experience.

Enforcement Questioned

If it wasn't apparent to some people prior to Thursday night's hearing in the Lincoln City Council chambers, it should be apparent now.

There is a strong undercurrent of opposition to certain Police Department enforcement policies in Lincoln and that opposition has surfaced.

The effort to keep dangerous drunk drivers off the streets is not the issue. No responsible person will oppose the reasonable enforcement of the drunk driving laws.

But there is at least a significant minority of people in this city who are concerned that individual rights may get trampled in the process of the police department's trying to jail as many people as possible. The people who are concerned feel that suspects who are arrested and jailed for alcohol-related offenses should be allowed the same rights as those jailed for other offenses: right to counsel, for instance, and a phone call to attorney or family instead of being held incommunicado for a period of hours. There is concern, too, about conditions in the jail and allegations of physical abuse of suspects on the part of officers. There is a question as to whether public intoxicants (as opposed to drunk drivers) should be arrested and there is a rising tide of opposition to policemen patrolling inside restaurants and bars, to alleged bar stakeouts and alleged stopping of vehicles without probable cause. There are also people who assert that off-duty policemen are given preferential treatment if they are caught drinking and driving.

Those concerns have been voiced in the past and were voiced again at the council hearing Thursday night. Additional testimony will be taken by Police Investigator M. James Bruckner in preparation for his report to the council. It will be up to Bruckner and the council to separate fact from fancy, hearsay from first-person experience. No doubt the effects of alcohol on memory or imagination or anti-police prejudice or a combination of any of them colored or distorted some of the testimony given. But there is sufficient reason to believe that there is substance to many of the charges.

An issue in addition to the enforcement of alcohol laws and which is the controlling issue was touched upon by two former Lincoln policemen Thursday night. It is the need for change in the policies and attitudes of the police department as determined at the top of the police administration. And that change will not be accomplished merely by the already-announced retirement of the present police chief. New policies will have to come from new people and by that we don't mean new people who will carry out the policies of the past.

The former policemen observed that it is hard for a conscientious officer to do his job as it should be done and to build relations of respect with the public if he is under constant pressure to write as many tickets or arrest as many people as possible. One of the ex-officers asserted, for example, that in his opinion some people are arrested and jailed who have no business being jailed — they had done nothing wrong.

It is this policy of overzealous enforcement and harassment of officers who are inclined to take a more balanced approach that the council and mayor will need to devote special attention to.

Mayor Schwartzkopf has taken what appears to be an excellent first step in the process of appointing a new Lincoln police chief. It is, in form at least, one of the wisest moves in his two terms. He is encouraging nationwide bidding on the job; has set up an examining board for applicants who will be screened as to experience and education and he will also appoint, along with the council, a Selection Advisory Committee which will recommend names to the mayor, who in turn will make an appointment subject to council confirmation.

If the two boards are comprised of unbiased people searching for the best talent and if the mayor and council keep open minds, Lincoln stands an excellent chance of finding a most capable replacement for departing Chief Joe Carroll.

And with the new chief may come, with mayoral blessing, the change in policy direction that hopefully will result in an appropriate balance between reasonable enforcement and respect for the citizen and his rights.

The 'Annual Drama'

Vice President Rockefeller and Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Senate minority leader, have said in recent statements that Congress will have to take the blame if the South Vietnamese and Cambodian governments fall, as well as for undermining America's reputation for keeping her moral commitments.

That is, Congress will have to shoulder the blame if it does not approve of the latest requests for more American money that President Ford has forwarded from Nguyen Van Thieu and Lon Nol.

Sen. Edward Kennedy properly objected to the administration line as articulated by Rockefeller and Scott, complaining that Americans are again witnessing the "annual drama of political rhetoric, of threats and scare tactics, about Vietnam and Indochina. Once again we are hearing the same old arguments and the same old controversies over the same old war. The lingering and bloody conflict deserves more of our diplomacy and not more of our ammunition."

Most Americans now question the validity of the commitment in the first place and they are sick of the war. But the "annual drama," as Kennedy says, continues.

It is like hearing voices from the past still harping about selling out Chiang Kai-shek to the Reds; complaining that the free world lost China to the communists because of American spinelessness. Those were the people who thought — and some still think — that the U.S. somehow could interpose its will between the mass of Chinese peasants and the Maoist fanatics. They couldn't understand that there was no way it could be done short of occupying China for the rest of time — that no matter how evil we thought the communists were or that they actually might be evil, they nevertheless were still acceptable to the masses of Chinese and in many respects a welcome relief from the feudal system.

We have had the experience of China and a bloody war in Vietnam to remind us that Americans don't understand Asia and the message still escapes some people.

VICTOR SEJOUR

They Had A Dream

Victor Sejour was a gifted writer and dramatist and the toast of Paris for a brief period in the mid-19th Century.

Twenty-one of his plays were produced on the Paris stage, and many of them met with critical success. All of Paris would turn out for his opening nights.

Then, just as suddenly as success came, Sejour's star eclipsed and he died penniless, his work outdated by the fickle mood of the public.

Born in New Orleans in 1817, Sejour was the son of a free Negro from Santo Domingo and his Creole wife. His father was a well-to-do member of the free black middle class of New Orleans and owned a cleaning and dye shop at 25 Chartres St.

He sent young Victor to the Saint Barbe Academy, conducted by an educated black named Michel Seligny. When Victor demonstrated literary talents, his family sent him off to the University of Paris.

After only two years of college, Sejour turned to writing and broke into Parisian literary circles in 1841 with the publication in Les Ceneelles of a heroic poem entitled "Le Retour de Napoleon."

He became acquainted with Alexandre Dumas and Emile Augier, the famous French playwright, and it probably was his association with these two men which led him into a theatrical career.

Sejour's first play, "Diegarias," was produced at the Theatre Francais in 1844. It was followed in 1849 by "La Chute de Sejan."

Among Sejour's most notable works were "Richard III," produced in 1852; "Le Fils de la Nuit," 1856, and "Les Volontaires de 1814."

Sejour is said to have possessed a thorough knowledge of stage direction. "Sejour played the stage with the skill of a master," according to one noted critic.

He also was a meticulous craftsman with a compulsive drive to attain perfection. He was known to work refining his dialogue up to the moment the curtain went up on opening night.

Sejour's plays were noted for their elaborate costuming and spectacular sets, which accounted in part for his success.

The tastes of Parisian theatergoers began to change, however, and Sejour fell from favor. In 1874, he experienced great difficulty finding a theater to stage his last two dramas, "Cromwell" and "Le Vampire."

He was then 57, sick and poor. Finally, La Gaite accepted "Le Vampire," but before it could be produced, Sejour fell ill and died of tuberculosis in the charity ward of a Paris hospital. He was buried in the cemetery of Pere-Lachaise in Paris.

Still 'Of, By and For'

Watergate and the C.I.A. seem bent on hanging their piffing on the Soviets' pouring of money into the U.S. to stop Vietnam and its byproducts. However, the entire political scope is dedicated to keeping all Americans out of American problems, verbally and economically, which is the most subversive and futile of all.

It is still fitting and proper to realize that the government is of, by and for the people, and when it gets too selective to recognize the rights of its citizens, somebody is going to find out why.

If it is impolite to sneeze, either use a hanky or get rid of the cold. Colds spread germs and are fatal.

Waiting For The Writers

For several weeks many of us have been waiting patiently for Tom Wicker, James Reston and Russell Baker to voice their suspicions of a deal between Judge Sirica and the star prosecution witnesses in the Watergate trial, Jeb Magruder and Colson, without whose testimony convictions hardly would have been secured.

These reporters were so quick to allege a bargain between Nixon and Ford, following the pardon of Nixon, that it seems amazing that they have failed to see a similar situation in the Watergate affair between a judge who may have compromised his office by his obviously biased public statements, and his quick parole for the witnesses who supported his views.

Their insensitiveness in the Watergate matter compared with their over-reaction in the Nixon pardon suggests that their reporting is of the advocacy type rather than factual.

A Look Around Home

I was moved by reading Dick Holman's report in the Wednesday morning Star: "Open Campus Lunch Hour Attacked By Some Parents."

Now, really — 93% of parents opposed, 5% favoring open campus, and 2% undecided!

The 93% figure is disgusting. I am a parent of a teenager who is a senior this year, though not at Southeast. I've said it before and I'll say it again — why the trouble? Why don't parents sit down and listen to their children just once? I wish a survey of those 93% were taken and it would be asked if the mothers work. If more of the parents would stop and realize what it means to a teenager to have Mother home after school and know that she is there during the day, it would solve a lot of problems.

Let's don't blame the schools and the children for what they want and do. I would do the same if I were in their shoes. It hasn't been that long ago that I was a teenager — and the 50's were fun!

I know it's too late for these mothers to stop working now because their jobs mean so much and, of course, most families are living beyond their means, etc. But if mothers had realized that the home needed them more when these kids were starting junior high, their relationship would be better off now. Kids don't want clothes and junk items. All parents are doing is buying love.

I laughed when I read about students drinking liquor in homes where parents are absent during lunch hours. But how many of the parents drink after work because of some dumb reason — a hard day at the office, kids getting them down, etc.? Have parents ever thought that they might get the kids down after a hard day at school?

Parents should remember that they put these youngsters here, and make them feel wanted, not unwanted. The teachers have a lot to straighten out after the parents make mistakes. I feel that most of this is a desire for attention. Parents should come up with the word "love" and see where they went wrong before degrading these fun teenagers. It's school, not a jail.

If they really want something to talk about, they should try Ford. He's wanting to send $3 billion to Vietnam. And who would end up fighting for us — those boys who are now teenagers. Let's think about it!

Who Should Pay Wheel Tax

I was reading The Star's "Column A" concerning the licensing of cars outside the county being "questionable." A Mr. Ruhnke was mentioned who works in Lincoln and has a telephone number at a Lincoln address, 1321 D St., Apt. 3. He also maintains a residence in Plymouth, northeast of Fairbury in Jefferson County. There, the article said, he owns property, VOTES and licenses his car with County No. 33 plates, which is cheaper than registering his car in Lancaster County.

If he can get out of paying the city wheel tax by claiming he uses his car more than half the time outside of the city and he works here, I should be able to do that, too. I am disabled, so ride the handi-bus to town and other places, and maybe drive my car a couple miles a week to the store and to church and then I might drive 125 miles to Norfolk or to other places outside the city.

Mr. Ruhnke might be registered to vote in Plymouth, but does he take off from work in Lincoln and drive to Plymouth to vote? Wonder if he gets paid for that day!

I suppose the writers also know that there are many cars garaged in Lincoln and registered in other parts of the county so the city wheel tax doesn't have to be paid? I talked to some of them last year in the line and they brag about it.

Now, about the cost in other cities and states. I came from California a few years ago and the following year in California would have cost me $25, but in Nebraska I had to pay $48, which is almost twice as much.

I refer to a letter I wrote to The Star Feb. 12, 1973, and printed a few days later. A Lincoln resident had written that the fairest kind of wheel tax would be to tax every car or truck in the entire state the same amount, but I questioned as to why it should be a wheel tax which taxes the poor the same as the rich. If the taxes that pay for the upkeep of the roads in the state are not high enough, then they must be raised, but they must be the same in every county in the state. Then a person would not even have a chance to cheat on his taxes, as they would be the same no matter where his vehicle was registered.

If the people do not want this, then I say put a wheel tax on every vehicle in the state and not just in Lincoln and Omaha. Did you know your next-door neighbor in Lincoln could have a plate with the County No. 2 on it, but not be paying the $8 wheel tax? Think of that awhile.

I believe if everyone who lives in Lincoln would pay the wheel tax, it could be lowered to probably $4 and if everyone in the county were required to pay it, we could lower it to about $2.

CAN'T WORK — AND HAVE TO PAY IT!

Presidential Pressure

NEW YORK — Gerald Ford is beginning to look more like a president, which is not necessarily a good thing. In dealing with the energy crisis, he has acted unilaterally, challenged rather than consulted, and proclaimed one true religion.

There is much to be said for this reversion to the Lyndon Johnson-Richard Nixon style. Among other things, it provides an object lesson to those in and out of Congress who, in the wake of Vietnam and Watergate, have too glibly assumed that congressional government is the proper alternative to an imperial presidency. For after its opening spasms of reform this Congress, too, is beginning to look more like a Congress.

The simple fact is that Ford has an energy program and Congress doesn't. Neither do the Democrats. And the basic reason for that is that the President — any President — has a policy-making apparatus that he can bring to a point of decision. Neither Congress nor the Democrats have that, either the best they can offer is a balancing out of interests that can and usually does take months or even years to effect.

So, as nearly always happens on complex and controversial issues, the President has taken the initiative. His bureaucrats and computers have produced a program to deal with the energy crisis, and he has put it before Congress with the flat demand that its 535 members either pass it or come up with a program of their own. This means at the least that the Ford program will be at the center of debate, that the President has effectively set the terms of that debate, and that the Democratic majority in Congress will have to run to catch up with him.

Ford also may have forced action that Congress otherwise would have delayed or fudged. By unilaterally proclaiming an excise tax on imported oil — $1 a barrel, rising later to $2, then $3 — he has put the first stage of his plan into effect, which means that Congress either has to go along with much of the rest of it, or repeal the excise tax, sustaining the repeal over Ford's veto. The latter course, even if successful, would still leave congressional Democrats the necessity to develop their own energy program, which they have not shown the will, the unity or the ability to do.

So throwing around some presidential weight has its merits. Ford has cut through all the hot air about energy and brought the country to grips with the energy problem, which is just what a president is supposed to do. But he is not supposed to dictate solutions, and Congress is certainly not required to rubber-stamp them when he tries to. In fact, while the politicians on Capitol Hill may not be well-equipped for proposing, they can be pretty good at disposing, and they just might know a few things that Ford's bureaucrats and computers don't.

By proclaiming the oil excise without even consulting Congress, moreover, Ford has started taking money out of an economy in recession, thus diluting the effect of the stimulus that both he and they agree should be put into it.

The offsetting tax reductions by which Ford means to repay the higher costs of energy to the public cannot go into effect before mid-year at the earliest. The Ford tax rebate program, or any of the congressional alternatives for stimulating the economy, will have to start putting purchasing power into the economy far more quickly than seems likely if they are to counteract the effects of the oil excise tax in the coming crucial months.

Proclaiming the excise tax as he did also presents Congress with the Ford energy plan as something of a fiat accomplish, when it is by no means certain that it is the best plan available, or even a good one. Ford himself has been heard to refer to this action as "putting a gun to Congress' head." In politics as in crime, that is playing rough, indeed, and while Ford may have forced action, he has not necessarily forced the right action at the right time.

The comprehensive energy plan Ford recommends has the great virtue of giving Congress something solid to work with. It sets goals and provides means of reaching them, but both the goals and the means need to be evaluated by people other than those who devised them. They may need to be improved or modified. Actual dollar costs per American family are in serious dispute; so is the long-term inflationary effect. Secondary and tertiary consequences need to be calculated as best they can be. Congressional hearings might be particularly helpful in achieving necessary public understanding. But if Congress has to weigh the energy program while under the gun of Ford's excise tax and its on-rushing economic effects, the country may well be hastened into action more easily regretted than redeemed.

Newest In Noetics

NEW YORK — Ever wonder what happens to laid-off astronauts? Well, John Glenn picked up a job in the U.S. Senate. Alan Shepard disappeared into a bank he owns, and moon-walker Edgar Mitchell (Apollo 14) is founder-president of the Institute of Noetic Sciences.

(Having had very little truck with matters relating to, or based on the intellect, I never knew until I asked Noah Webster that noetic means matters relating to, or based on the intellect.)

Mitchell made several attempts to communicate with friends back on earth during his 216 hours, one minute and 57 seconds Out There. Communicate, that is, by something that is beyond electronics and even Extra Sensory Perception. We don't know how that experiment came out, but as of today's mail we do know that his Institute of Noetic Sciences is alive and concentrating in Palo Alto, Calif., and looking for new members, from $50 to $1,000. It is a non-profit tax-exempt public foundation worst described by a publicity handout which reads, in part:

"The objective of the Institute is to explore new avenues of basic research that appear productive in providing new insights into what inner resources people have to solve their problems and live creatively, in good health, and with a sense of meaning, direction and harmony."

The institute's experiments dealing with paranormal phenomena are being conducted at the Stanford Research Institute. An Israeli, Uri Geller, has given Mitchell and his associates great hope that they are on the brink of discovering a startling method of communication.

Geller, sealed in an electrically-shielded room, was asked to reproduce remote drawings of a firecracker, a bunch of grapes, the devil, a horse, and the solar system. He did so, after a proper period of concentration.

To boot, Pat Price, a former California police commissioner, perceived scenes of places he had never observed or even heard about.

Professional Research Chairs are being established by the Noetic group to pursue the phenomenon. The first will be named for Dr. Werner von Braun, whose Saturn 5 lifted Mitchell to the moon, and who encouraged the astronaut to write "Psychic Exploration: A Challenge for Science."

Mitchell has come in for a bit of ridicule from his space age peers. But he feels he has a strong crutch in something Theodore Roosevelt wrote:

"It is not the critic who counts, or how the strong man stumbled and fell. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly, who errs and comes short again and again, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotion, and spends himself in a worthy cause; and if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that he'll never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat."

Records Of Police Fund 'Lousy'

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Friday that his investigation into the police department's handling of its "police benevolent fund" has produced no evidence of wrongdoing.

Schwartzkopf said, however, that "lousy" bookkeeping was kept on the fund and has recommended that a corporation be established and a board of directors be created to oversee the fund, which amounts to about $7,000.

Schwartzkopf and Police Chief Joseph Carroll said that the investigation revealed no grounds for a charge that $200 in funds that should have gone to the city treasurer's office had been deposited in the fund.

Sale Of Reports

The $200 in question allegedly came from the sale of copies of accident reports to the public.

Carroll said that "we'll be happy to take the mayor's suggestions" for overseeing the fund.

The Police Benevolent Fund began as a kitty into which officers tossed coins when they drank from an office coffee pot.

The kitty, originally known as the "flower fund," was used to purchase flowers for police officers and their families on occasions of illness, marriage or death.

When the police department moved to the County-City Building more than five years ago, police began collecting profits — $250 to $340 per month — from vending machines in the department's coffee bar.

Cigarette Profit

In addition to those profits, donations and rewards from appreciative citizens were placed in the fund. Another source of revenue — which has now been discontinued — was a five-cent profit on packages of cigarettes sold to prisoners in the jail.

In addition to buying flowers, the fund is also used for purchasing Christmas presents for youths in orphanages, lunches for the elderly, the Police Boy's Camp at Milford and uniforms for the midget football team sponsored by the police department.

Carroll said police also use the fund to pay informers, make drug "buys" during undercover investigations and to help finance other police work.

Carroll said use of the fund for those purposes saved tax dollars and eliminated red tape of getting the money from city coffers.

Major Police Evaluation Urged

A candidate for the office of mayor said Friday that the investigation into the police department's handling of alcohol-related offenses should be expanded to include an in-depth evaluation of the department.

Jo Delores Bragg said the timing is right for an evaluation of the department and its community relations because the city is in the process of searching for a new chief of police.

made three years ago by the city's Human Rights Commission.

Bragg, a member of the commission, said "the issues were swept under the rug" by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

She charged that "questionable practices are allowed to remain within the department unchallenged."

Citizens will continue to question police procedures until "a mayor is elected who will respond to the wishes and concerns of the people."

Bragg recommended that the city bring in outside law enforcement experts to review the department. Additionally, she urged the council to consider the recommendations made by the Human Rights Commission in 1972, which called for:

- the use of citizen volunteers in the correctional field with juveniles, alcoholics and police.
- creation of a citizen review panel to hear citizen complaints against individual police officers.
- contacting several agencies for an in-depth department study, including the U.S. Department of Justice, the National Sheriffs Association and the U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

Chamber Endorses Gas Tax Hike

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Friday decided to put its weight behind LB301, a legislative bill seeking a three-cent increase in the state's motor vehicle and special fuel taxes.

In effect, the bill would increase state gasoline taxes from 8½ to 11½ cents a gallon. A public hearing on the issue is scheduled for 2 p.m. Monday before the Legislature's Revenue Committee.

At the same time, the bill calls for cutting the shrinkage allowance on fuels from 3½ to 1½, said J. William (Bill) Peterson, chairman of the chamber's Metro Streets and Highway Committee.

Largest In Nation

Nebraska's fuel shrinkage allowance, which Peterson said is the highest in the nation, exempts from taxation fuel which may be lost through spillage and evaporation.

Experts estimate the gasoline tax hike would raise an additional $28.5 million in revenue next year. And by Peterson's arithmetic, reducing the shrinkage allowance would add another $2 million.

Peterson indicated his intent in endorsing the bill was to ensure more money is made available for highway and safety improvements.

The chamber also voted to endorse LB401, which authorizes the state to issue highway bonds for as much as $20 million. Peterson said the bill, in effect, would extend legislation which expired last year.

Turning to internal affairs, the chamber approved a 1975 budget of $306,540, about $14,000 less than last year's budget. One reason for the cutback is that in 1974 the chamber wound up $17,000 short.

'Bite The Bullet'

Chamber President Paul J. Amen noted that budget slices had been made "across the board" and urged those most affected to "bite the bullet."

The Junior Chamber's annual $1,500 allowance was wiped out completely in the process.

Among the resolutions adopted Friday was one to speed up highway projects, which now take an average of 8½ years because of "excessive review and regulatory requirements."

The resolution urges Nebraska congressmen to amend federal laws to require timetables and to simplify procedures and modify laws "imposing too rigid requirements for protection of the environment."

One project the chamber has been increasingly concerned about is widening W. Cornhusker Highway, which leads to the new airport terminal. Officials have been told it could take six to eight years for completion.

2 Haymarket Square Plans In Limbo

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Two proposals for use of the so-called Haymarket Square block located on the fringe of the downtown are still in limbo.

The Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) Friday continued deliberations on the merits of both plans and asked city department heads to submit their reports on the proposals to DAC. That means that no recommendations will be forthcoming from DAC until the end of February.

The City Council set a March 1 deadline to receive recommendations from the city administration and DAC.

Both Fall Short

Last week DAC members indictated that both proposals fell short of what they envisioned for the city-owned block, located between 9th and 10th, Q to R.

DAC members agreed that a major problem in their deliberations is whether the city should lease the block or sell it.

The council originally advertised to lease the block.

A Sioux City firm, Francis Building Co., said it is willing to enter into a lease with the city to build a Rodeway Inn motel on the block.

But the Journal-Star Printing Co., which originally indicated an interest in leasing the block, now wants to buy the land for expansion of its newspaper operations. The main newspaper plant is located in the block to the south of the Haymarket Square block.

DAC Divided

DAC members were divided on whether the city should retain ownership of the land or sell it.

John Campbell and Paul Amen said the city should not be in the land speculation business.

Businessmen on the panel agreed with DAC member Burnham Yates, who said developers would be more willing to spend the money on projects built on their own land than they would on land they leased.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said there was a "basic public purpose" in leasing the property rather than selling it. She said the city could better control development by retaining the land.

DAC member Earb Henderson pointed out that the city has a third alternative for use of the land — retaining it for use as a parking lot. Several DAC subcommittees have suggested that proposal.

Attorney Dave Tews said the Journal-Star would convert the land into a hard-surfaced parking lot for a minimum of five years. The 214 parking stalls provided would help alleviate the parking shortage downtown, Tews said.

Bethesda Hospital May Reconsider

Recent action by the executive committee of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council (SeNHPC) may ultimately mean good news for the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD).

The committee recommended that the SeNHPC board not endorse Bethesda Hospital's project application to the Nebraska Department of Health's Division of Hospitals and Medical Facilities.

That may lead officials of Bethesda Hospital (formerly Providence Hospital) to renew negotiations with LCAD for housing the city's detoxification center, Bob Adams, LCAD executive director, said Friday.

He said he received word late last week that Bethesda had terminated the negotiations on the grounds that it wished to continue functioning as a short-term acute general hospital, with no change in beds or services, he said.

The SeNHPC withheld its endorsement because of what it termed "a surplus of short-term acute hospital beds in Lancaster county."

As an alternative to using existing space, Bethesda officials proposed "adding on or building" a separate structure to house the detoxification center, Adams said.

Bethesda still could function as a short-term hospital, but Medicare and Medicaid reimbursements would be in jeopardy without the state's approval of its project proposal.

Adams said LCAD will play a waiting game to "see if they are further interested," but will let Bethesda make the first move.

The detoxification center, financed by the City Council through a $94,200 grant to LCAD, was to have begun operation Jan. 1 at the Salvation Army

Men's Social Center at 7th and P.

The Salvation Army, however, was forced to back out of the arrangement in early December when its national headquarters failed to approve the contract.

On Dean's List

Where Did That Drawl Come From?

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"Numbah tharee, pahleese. Numbah tharee."
The public address system lady at Brandeis was at it again.

Anyone who has ever shopped the department store recognizes the voice with the first syllable.

To some, it's a knee jerk, causing an audible groan. To others, the long, drawn out voice, with just a hint of a Southern drawl, conjures up an image of the person it belongs to.

What Is She Like?

But what does the public address system woman really look like? What is she like? Where is she from with such a voice?

The moment of confrontation was at hand. There she was, the public address system lady — waiting on the fifth floor by Brandeis' administrative offices.

She was fidgeting, nervous about the meeting, not quite sure her voice really was somewhat of a legend among those who frequent the department store.

Rarely does she meet her admiring public. Mary Young, 23, the woman behind the voice, works the huge switchboard tucked into a small corner of the store's sixth floor, an untraveled area that doubles as a warehouse.

When her voice fills the store's air waves, she is paging a fellow employee, ready to forward a message; other times, she is alerting customers to the impending closing hour.

A Lot Of Teasing

"I've been teased about it (her drawl) ever since . . . we went to the paging system," Mrs. Young said, laughing.

Sometimes her fellow employees answer the page mimicking her every word, her every inflection.

"I'm glad everyone else can joke about it," she said, half defensively, then added: "It usually gets me laughing, though."

Surprisingly, the drawl had disappeared as she chatted at a rapid clip, stopping now and then to sip a soft drink.

"If I slow down and talk, the drawl will come out," she said.

Mrs. Young quickly learned that she had to talk slower when using a pager or a microphone. "If I talked like I am, no one would be able to understand me," she explained.

But what about that drawl of hers?

"I was born and raised here," she said. A Southern residency allowing assimilation? "No."

No One Knows

"My mom and sister are the only ones in the family with it," Mrs. Young said, still a bit overwhelmed by the attention her voice was receiving. No one's sure just where the drawl comes from — her mother is a native Lincolnite, too, she said.

What does the woman behind the voice do when she isn't answering calls or paging employees?

The conversation finally had gotten around to a subject she was more at ease with — and she warmed up instantly.

"I rarely leave home during my days off," she said. Those days are spent catching up on household chores, her needlework — running the gamut from sewing to crocheting — and her plants that, together, compose a virtual jungle by one window.

Just then the switchboard lighted up. She turned to it and answered slowly, her enchanting drawl returning:

"Thank you fah cahling, Brandice"

A funny thing happened on the way to the annual Spring Foursomes played in Eastbourne, England, in 1970. Along came a team from Poland which proceeded to defeat the 64-team entry and walk off with this prestigious British championship.

Here is a sample of the scientific bidding methods employed by one of the Polish pairs in arriving at a super-sound grand slam in hearts.

(The British pair at the other table stopped at six hearts.)
With Jedrejowski North and Jaworski South, the bidding went in the manner shown.

1. This was an asking bid in spades.

2. Three notrump indicated two aces plus first or second round control of spades.

3. An asking bid in clubs.

4. This showed first or second round control of clubs.

5. Four spades showed the ace and asked North to clarify his spade holding further.

6. This indicated third round control of spades, either the K-Q or the doubleton king.

7. Five notrump was the grand slam force, asking about partner's trump holding.

8. As played by the Polish pair, this indicated two of the three top trump honors.

9. Why not? Jaworski knew there were no spade or heart losers, and his only problem was the possibility of a diamond loser. But this danger could largely be discounted, for North was practically certain to have the king of clubs for his four diamond bid, and this in turn meant there would be no diamond loser.

Stay Out Of My Kitchen!

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter in your column from the busy hostess who didn't know how to tell some of her well-meaning guests that she didn't want them in the kitchen trying to help her, and I had to send you this. It's something I saw printed in large letters, hanging at the entrance of a dear friend's kitchen. (Needless to say, we stay out of each other's kitchens now.)

Please stay away from my kitchen.

From my dishwashing, cooking and such.

You are kind to have offered to help me.

And I do want to thank you so much.

I hope you won't think me ungracious.

When I ask that you leave me alone.

For my kitchen is not very spacious.

But my system is strictly my own.

So please stay out of my kitchen—

It may well prevent a few wars.

And when I'm invited to your house

I promise to stay out of yours!

C. O. C. IN NEWPORT, CAL.

DEAR C.: That would be great in needpoint. You could make your point, and gently needle your friends at the same time. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. My granddaughter is getting married and she has asked me — her grandmother — to be her matron of honor!

Now, Abby, I am a 75-year-old, gray-haired, old lady, and have never heard of such a thing. Can you help me out and tell me if this is proper or not? Please tell me honestly, do you think I would look ridiculous?

RHODE ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Of course it's proper. Your granddaughter could not have paid you a more beautiful compliment. Accept it graciously, (but let one of the other girls catch the bridal bouquet!)

DEAR ABBY: I just read that letter from the man who was driving when his 16-year-old son was killed instantly in a freak accident. The father walked away with only a small cut on his nose. His wife blamed him, and she became cool and distant.

Abby, I have been through the heartache of losing a beautiful two-and-a-half-year-old daughter (our only child) when her father accidentally ran over her with a tractor. She died in my arms on the way to the hospital. Not once did I dream of turning away from my husband when he needed me so much. We lived through that nightmare together, giving strength to each other. How that lady could continue to punish her husband on top of the punishment he is giving himself is beyond me.

She should realize that she has much to be thankful for. God spared her husband. And God let her keep her son for 16 years. I thank God for letting me keep my daughter for two and a half years, and I thank Him for taking her without allowing her to suffer.

If you think this will help that poor mother in her grief, you may print it. It was written in memory of my daughter.

Tax Advice Worth Expense

By JOANNE FARRIS

It is not a moment too soon to work through some of the information I gleaned from a recent "inflation seminar" presented by the Senior Citizens' Resource Center of a southern university. The advice about federal income taxes is, of course, particularly relevant.

First of all, say the experts, review your past returns; they offer a good guide for this year's work. As you go over them you may be reminded of an expense or deduction you forgot to claim last year. If it amounts to enough money, you may want to amend last year's return.

It is vitally important to bring yourself up to date on the changes in the federal income tax law for 1974. If you live in an apartment or condominium or belong to a senior citizens' club, now is the time to have a speaker from the Internal Revenue Service or from a good accounting firm.

Good advice is worth paying for, so your group might consider putting up an honorarium to get a "top" man in the field. Whoever the speaker is, take careful notes, and ask him or her specific questions.

You may decide that it is to your advantage to have professional help in working up your tax return. It is surprising how inexpensive good professional help can be if you do the preliminary fact-gathering carefully and completely yourself.

If your state has its own income tax, pay as much care and attention to that return as you do to your Federal return, and get "expert" advice for that, too.

A suggestion which may apply to some of you who want to work part time is this: Pair up with another person who has skills to match yours; then find a job both of you can handle, each of you working half-time. This can apply to a good one-day volunteer job, too.

Life insurance policies can be a source for a low-interest loan, if you are in a financial bind, but it's not wise to invade this portion of your family's financial protection except in case of emergency. It is too easy not to pay back the loan.

If you get into a long-term "bind" and can't even pay the interest, the insurance company will have to add that interest each year to the loan outstanding against your policy, and you could end up losing the policy.

Although that drastic alternative may not occur, the unpaid loan plus any unpaid interest would have to be deducted from the face amount of the policy in the event of your death, just when your beneficiary would stand in greatest need of the money.

There is no pressure on you to repay an insurance policy loan, which makes it awfully easy to let it slide. The actual amount of interest you pay over a long period can add up to much more than the interest on a consumer loan which you would repay promptly.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25.

"IS IT WELL WITH YOUR SOUL?"

We are undertaking to make John Wesley our guest columnist today by quoting from his "message to mankind," especially concerning the lost condition of the soul of man, and then upon the one condition upon which one might be admitted to the Methodist Society.

"Methodism is one of the most extraordinary facts of modern history. Its origin, the rapidity of its growth, its extension over so great a portion of Christendom, and the influence it has exerted, in so short a period of time and for eternity, give it a place in history, and especially designate it as a great Providential arrangement. . . . The Wesleyan Reformation is the third great religious movement in the onward march of the Christian Church since her deliverance from the thralldom of the dark ages. The Reformation of the 16th Century, developed and conducted by Martin Luther and the extraordinary men of his time, was a wonderful event, which, at every step of its progress, bears upon it the impress of The Divine Hand. The great religious movement of the 17th Century, which we may call the Puritan Reformation, will ever stand as one of the great landmarks of history, far reaching in its influence, and permanent as the truth and the Church of God. The great movement of the 18th Century, which we have denominated the Wesleyan Reformation, was another of the few leading events of a kindred character, which ever and anon at great intervals, revolutionize society and bless the world."

"Mine and your desert," said Wesley to his hearers, "is hell; and it is mere mercy, free undeserved mercy, that we are not in unquenchable fire. . . . The natural man lies in the valley of the shadow of death. Having no inlets for the knowledge of spiritual things, all the avenues of his soul being shut up, he is in gross stupid ignorance of whatsoever he is most concerned to know. He sees not that he stands on the edge of the pit; therefore he fears it not; he has not understanding enough to fear. He satisfies himself by saying, God is merciful, confounding and swallowing up at once, in that unwieldy idea of mercy, all His Holiness and hatred of sin. . . . All His Justice, Wisdom, and Truth. God touches him, and now first he discovers his real state. Horrid light breaks in upon his soul — such light as may be conceived to gleam from the bottomless pit, from the lowest deep, from a lake of fire burning with brimstone: . . . art thou thoroughly convinced that thou deservest everlasting damnation? Would God do thee wrong if He commanded the earth to open and swallow thee up? . . . if thou would now go down into the pit . . . into the fire that shall never be quenched?"

Wesley insisted upon the new birth, its necessity without which he affirmed there could be no salvation. "To say that we cannot be born again, that there is no new birth but in baptism, is to seal you all under damnation — consign you unto hell," without help, without hope. Thousands do really believe that they have found A BROAD WAY WHICH LEADETH NOT TO DESTRUCTION. What danger (say they) can a woman be in that is so harmless and so virtuous? What fear is there for that so honest a man, one of so strict morality, should miss heaven? Especially if, over and above all this, they constantly attend on the church and the sacraments? One of these will ask with all assurance, "What, shall I not do as well as my neighbors?" Yes, as well as your ungodly neighbors, as well as your neighbors that die in their sins, for you will all drop in the pit together, into the nethermost hell, you will all lie together in the lake of fire, 'the lake of fire burning with brimstone!' Then at length you will see (God grant you may see it before) the necessity of holiness in order to glory, and consequently, of the new birth since none can be holy, except he be born again." Where lies the uncharitableness, on my side, or yours? I say he may be born again, and so become an heir of salvation; you say he cannot be born again; and, if so, he must inevitably perish; so you utterly block up his way to salvation, and send him to hell, out of mere charity! They who do not teach men to walk in the narrow way, who encourage the easy, careless, harmless, useless creature, the man who suffers no reproach for righteousness' sake, to imagine he is in the way to heaven; these are false prophets in the highest sense of the word; these are traitors both to God and man; these are not other than the first born of Satan, and the eldest son of Apollon the destroyer. These are above the ordinary cut-throats, for they murder the souls of men. They are continually peopling the realms of night, and wherever they follow the poor souls whom they have destroyed, hell shall be moved from beneath to meet them at their coming."

Concerning the terms upon which one might be admitted into The Methodist Societies, Wesley said: "One circumstance is quite peculiar to the Methodists: They do not impose in order to their admission any opinion whatever. Let them hold particular or general redemption, absolute, or conditional decrees; let them be Churchmen, or Dissenters, Presbyterians or Independents, it is no obstacle. Let them choose one mode of worship, it is no bar to their admission. The Presbyterian may be a Presbyterian still. The Independent or Anabaptist use his own mode of worship; so may the Quaker, and none will contend with him about it. . . . They think, and let think. One condition, and only one is required:

"A REAL DESIRE TO SAVE THEIR SOULS!"

Where this is, it is enough: They desire no more. They lay stress on nothing else. They ask only, 'Is thine heart herein as my heart?' If it be true, give me thine hand.

"Methodism is one of the most extraordinary facts of modern history. Its origin, the rapidity of its growth, its extension over so great a portion of Christendom, and the influence it has exerted, in so short a period of time and for eternity, give it a place in history, and especially designate it as a great Providential arrangement." This great work to God sprang from men who had "A REAL DESIRE TO SAVE THEIR SOULS!"

Monthly Gain Best On Record

New York (AP) — The stock market put the final touches on its best monthly gain on record and its busiest week in history Friday with a solid advance stimulated by a continuing slide in interest rates

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 7.27 to 703.69, winding up the week with a 37.08 advance

The Dow's stunning net gain of 87.45 points for the calendar month towered over its best previous monthly showings, such as the 65-point jumps recorded in October 1966 and October of last year

Advances outpaced declines 972 to 508 among the 1,826 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange

Big Board volume of 26.64 million shares brought the total for the week to more than 145 million. That far surpassed the previous high of 110.62 million the week ended Feb. 12, 1974

The session began with a mild decline that was widely seen as a carryover of the profit taking that appeared Thursday after a six-session series of advances

But the selling proved mild and short-lived

New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust, meanwhile, was lowering its prime lending rate from 9 1/2 to 9 per cent, matching a reduction posted Thursday by Chase Manhattan of New York

Morgan is the nation's fifth largest bank and Chase the third

Expectations of a continued decline in the prime were heightened by the Federal Reserve's report after Thursday's close that business loans at major New York banks had dropped substantially for the fourth week in a row

Gold Futures

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gold futures prices fell Friday, but late quotes dropped to $38.00-$38.75

Sows were steady to 50-cents higher on tickets marked for $34.50-$35.25

The slaughter cattle run totaled just 1,000 head, and that was hardly enough to establish a trade. Cows sales, which were also limited, were called steady. A few utility and commercial cows brought $16.00-$17.50, canners and cutters from $12.50-$16.00

The sheep pens were empty

Monthly Gain Best On Record

New York (AP) — The stock market put the final touches on its best monthly gain on record and its busiest week in history Friday with a solid advance stimulated by a continuing slide in interest rates

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 7.27 to 703.69, winding up the week with a 37.08 advance

The Dow's stunning net gain of 87.45 points for the calendar month towered over its best previous monthly showings, such as the 65-point jumps recorded in October 1966 and October of last year

Advances outpaced declines 972 to 508 among the 1,826 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange

Big Board volume of 26.64 million shares brought the total for the week to more than 145 million. That far surpassed the previous high of 110.62 million the week ended Feb. 12, 1974

The session began with a mild decline that was widely seen as a carryover of the profit taking that appeared Thursday after a six-session series of advances

But the selling proved mild and short-lived

New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust, meanwhile, was lowering its prime lending rate from 9 1/2 to 9 per cent, matching a reduction posted Thursday by Chase Manhattan of New York

Morgan is the nation's fifth largest bank and Chase the third

Expectations of a continued decline in the prime were heightened by the Federal Reserve's report after Thursday's close that business loans at major New York banks had dropped substantially for the fourth week in a row

Soybean Checkoff Plan Meets Some Opposition

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The proposed soybean checkoff program, to establish a fund for promotion and research, ran into some opposition during a hearing of the Legislature's Committee on Agriculture and the Environment Friday.

LB74 would establish a committee made up of soybean producers to operate a promotion and research program funded by a maximum of one cent per bushel of soybeans produced in the state.

Eugene Glock of Rising City, current president of the Nebraska Soybean Association, told the committee "We expect to operate on a half cent a bushel rather than the total of one cent that is in the bill."

The bill drew support from the Nebraska Farmers Union, the Nebraska Wheatgrowers Association, the Nebraska Agricultural Council and qualified support from the Nebraska Grange.

General Support
Ed Andersen of Waterloo, state master of the Grange, said his organization generally supported the concept but he wanted membership of the board of directors to come from other farm organizations than the soybean growers because only 3% of the growers actually were members of the state soybean group.

Glock agreed that any list submitted to the governor for approval would include a majority of non-members of his organization.

Two men who were appointed to the Nebraska Wheat Advisory Commission by former Gov. Norbert Tiemann, Lou Laflin of Crab Orchard and Wayne Nielsen of Waverly, opposed the bill as written.

Nielsen said he wasn't totally opposed to the concept but warned that tighter controls over what a board could do with the tax money were needed than were currently in use in the wheat program.

"You have three wheat offices in Washington and one on the West Coast. They have high-paid executives who take too much of the funds collected from farmers for administrative purposes," he said.

Nielsen suggested that a fixed percentage of the income should be spent on research rather than allowing the committee appointed by the governor to make the decision.

Laflin objected to the mandatory feature of the bill, suggesting that contributions by soybean growers be entirely voluntary. Laflin said he would prefer a program operated entirely outside of government.

"I particularly object to the political appointment by the governor," he said.

Both men suggested that checkoff programs put too much money and power into the hands of the state director of agriculture.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation asked that the bill be held until the committee could study a new proposal to cover all checkoff programs developed by the Farm Bureau.

John Klinker, State Farm Bureau president, read policy statements on checkoff programs developed over several years by the organization that ranged from outright opposition to suggestions that strong controls and safeguards for the funds be written into the programs.

Klinker explained to the committee that his organization's bylaws limited his statement to reading the policy developed in the organization's state convention "I can't go beyond that," he said.

The closing statement by Glock indicated his organization was willing to accept amendments to the bill to allow for a farmer to ask for a refund if he was unhappy with the program.

Barometer
Glock suggested that the number of requests for refund would be an adequate barometer of the effectiveness of the program. "If we get a lot of recall of fund requests we will know growers are unhappy," he said.

The committee also heard testimony on LB136, which would put both the registration of brands on cattle and the brand inspection program under the same agency.

At present there are two separate agencies, which makes it necessary to maintain two separate sets of records and two separate sets of personnel. Both programs are funded by charges for services performed.

Under the bill, the programs would be run under the direction of the Nebraska Brand Committee, which is automatically chaired by the secretary of state.

Enthusiasts Have Heavy Night At Peter Serkin Performance

By EARL DYER
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln chamber music enthusiasts had a heavy night — and a rewarding one — Friday night as the Peter Serkin Ensemble, also known as "Tashi," performed at Sheldon Gallery.

The program began with a Bela Bartok trio in which pianist Serkin, violinist Ida Kavafian and clarinetist Richard Stolzman each showed his ability to handle difficult passages. The trio is not as cohesive a piece of music as Bartok's well-known quartets and was not easy to listen to, but it had a lively ending and got a warm response from the audience.

Then cellist Fred Sherry joined Serkin in a vigorous performance of the Bach Sonata in G Minor.

The real treat came after intermission — Oliver Messiaen's Quartet for the End of Time, a long composition with alternating solo and unison passages of extraordinary beauty.

Solzman displayed marvelous control in a long unaccompanied solo, particularly in unusual long, sustained single-note crescendos. The single voice of the reed instrument held the audience spellbound.

In a lengthy and hauntingly beautiful cello solo, Sherry managed to produce uncommonly sweet sounds to carry the slow, slow melody above a simple and almost percussive piano accompaniment.

And a violin solo, again accompanied with taste by Serkin, proved Miss Kavafian a violinist capable of handling heavy emotional content with great beauty.

Between the solos, and before and after, there were unison movements in which the four musicians acted as one voice with never a suspicion of a difference between them in tempo or interpretation.

It was not an evening for relaxing with familiar and soothing sounds but one that kept the audience leaning forward and deep in thought.

State Forecasts Little Surplus Space

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

There won't be much room to spare for future expansion in the new State Office Building, according to a space study completed by the architects.

The study prompted State Building Commission member Thomas Woods of Lincoln to remark somewhat facetiously "We better start looking for a site for another new office building."

The study, presented to the commission Friday, indicated the 47 agencies slated to occupy the structure when completed in November 1976 will need 381,316 square feet of office space.

The $20 million office building, located north of the Capitol on the 15th St. mall, will have 381,700 square feet available.

Not Much Surplus
Gov. J. James Exon, commission chairman, said, "That doesn't leave a great deal of surplus space."

Available space can be stretched, the architects said, by reducing the space allowed per occupant from 152 square feet to 140.

In addition, State Administrative Services Director Stan Matzke noted there is some thought about moving the state's data processing from the Capitol to a separate building for security reasons. Such a move would open up roughly 30,000 square feet of space in the Capitol.

The Capitol's tower could also be used for storage, he said, since the tower is a fire trap and will be vacated when the new office building is completed.

Space could be saved by using the more expensive modular furniture in the office building rather than conventional furniture, Matzke said.

In other action, the commission authorized Matzke and the architects to work out an agreement with the Postal Service for mail handling in the new building.

L.G. Moore, Lincoln postmaster, said the Postal Service cannot afford to maintain stations in both the Statehouse and the office building.

It was suggested that the postal station be located in the new building since the agencies there do the bulk of the state's mailing. Moore called the present postal station "wholly inadequate" for the $750,000 in receipts handled each year.

The commission also approved a site on the west side of 17th St. between Howard and Harney Sts. in Omaha for a state office building there.

The site is owned by Omaha's Metropolitan Utilities District, which is asking $750,000 for it.

Omaha Police Testing Funded

The State Crime Commission Friday approved funding to set up a testing format for selection of an assistant police chief in Omaha in what director Harris Ownes described as an "innovative program."

The program would rely heavily on psychological testing and would be applicable to all command positions in law enforcement, according to Larry Wewell, Omaha personnel director.

Wewell said the procedure could also be used for lower grades in law enforcement, but noted that it would be cumbersome.

Commission member Frank Koehler questioned whether the test procedure that would be drawn up would be applicable to other cities in the state where the details the jobs would differ from Omaha.

Wewell contended that once the validity of the testing procedure was established it could be used to test for varied job requirements.

A grant of $6,965.89 was approved on a 11-5 vote, with two members abstaining. The grant had been turned down by the grant review committee earlier, and in previous months the grant was bounced back and forth before it was put to a final vote.

In other action the commission approved a grant of $19,870.39 to hire an attorney for the Nebraska Indian Commission.

The attorney will supervise seven VISTA paralegal workers who will aid Indians in trouble with the law. The attorney will be stationed in Lincoln.

The attorney will be complemented by a VISTA attorney who will be stationed in Scottsbluff, according to the Crime Commission.

Largest of the grants given approval was $190,243.80 to continue work release and skills development programs at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Attorney Begins Term At Prison

Omaha (UPI) — A former Omaha attorney was ordered to the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln Friday to begin a one-to-10-year prison term for violating his probation on a motor vehicle homicide conviction.

Douglas County District Judge Theodore Richling carried out the order against G. Merrill Kartman issued by the Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday.

In addition, Assistant Public Defender Bennett Hornstein said his motions for a hearing before the Supreme Court appealing Richling's sentences had been overruled.

County GOP Eases Off On Golden

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A Lancaster County Republican committee has decided not to push for the resignation of County Treasurer Frank Golden nor begin a petition drive asking for Golden's recall.

But the special committee, appointed in mid-January to study the county treasurer's office, is supporting future state legislation providing qualifications for the treasurer's office.

The committee will recommend to the county GOP that it support such legislation, and the intention would be to draft a bill for consideration by the Nebraska Legislature, said Gar Donnellson, committee chairman and a GOP vice chairman.

"Even though there are substantial inefficiencies in the treasurer's office, it is the committee's conclusion that the public is willing to see if things can be corrected. The recent appointment of an experienced chief deputy appears to be a step in the right direction," a committee statement said.

Terry Adams, formerly an examiner with the state auditor's office, will take over as chief deputy Monday.

The decision to drop the recall and resignation proposals were not connected

FCC Decision To Be Fought

Omaha (AP) — The majority stockholder in Star Stations, Inc., Don Burden, said Friday the company will fight a Federal Communications Commission decision not to renew the licenses of five stations.

Burden said in a prepared statement that the FCC decision is contrary to the recommendations of an administrative law judge and will be appealed to the courts.

FCC officials described Friday's action as perhaps the biggest license denial action ever taken.

Affected by the order are WIFE AM-FM, Indianapolis, Ind., KOIL AM and KEFM FM, Omaha, and KISN AM, Vancouver, Wash.

Burden was not available for direct comment, but released his statement through his secretary.

In the statement, which was distributed to Star employees Friday afternoon, Burden said the charges against the stations were brought more than five years ago by a group of disgruntled employees, but that an administrative law judge exonerated Star on all counts.

Purden said he has not yet seen a copy of the decision, but he feels confident that the courts will reverse the FCC.

Burden's statement said, "We have an absolute right to appeal this outrageous, biased decision. I have instructed our attorneys to immediately proceed to take such an appeal to the courts."

The FCC said it found that serious misconduct had occurred in the operation of the Star stations, and that Burden, as the chief stockholder, was intimately involved in and had knowledge of the misconduct.

Burden said, "I have not as yet seen a copy of the commission's decision, but I and our attorneys feel confident that it is fraught with errors in both fact and law."

to Democrat Golden's vote allowing Republican Robert Colin to continue as county commissioner after Colin failed to meet state bonding requirements, Donnellson said.

Golden was one of three county officials who this week unanimously voted to reinstate Colin as commissioner.

"I know people are going to think the two are connected, but they are really two separate items," Donnellson said.

The county GOP will be monitoring developments in the treasurer's office to see if improvements take place, according to Art Knox, GOP county chairman.

Fewer Flu Cases Reported In State

Influenza cases in Nebraska appear to be decreasing, according to Dr. Paul Stoesz, head of the disease control division of the Nebraska Health Department.

A survey across the state Friday indicated a drop, Dr. Stoesz said, although an Associated Press dispatch from the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., stated that influenza has shown a sharp increase in the west-north-central region, which includes Nebraska.

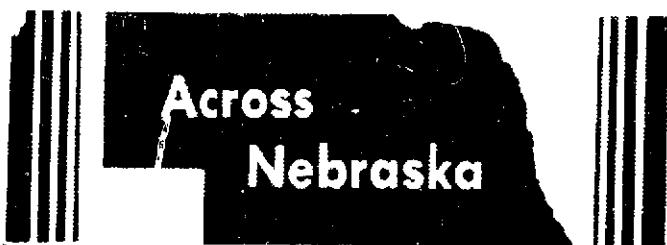

However, the Atlanta statistics covered the week ended Jan. 25, and are outdated by Friday's check.

Dr. Stoesz explained there had been a good many influenza cases in the state in the past two or three weeks, causing schools to close for a few days in Barneston and Madison, with higher than usual absenteeism elsewhere.

In contacting physicians Friday in Norfolk, South Sioux City, Hastings, Lexington, Kearney and Grand Island, health department officials found influenza cases "on the downgrade, except in Lexington," Dr. Stoesz said. A call to North Platte revealed no unusual number of influenza cases there, he added.

Dr. Stoesz said the incidence of influenza this year does not seem to be as severe as it was a couple of years ago. Reports show it started in the southeastern part of the U.S. and is moving westward, he added.

Schuerman was working on the starter of a truck, when the truck lurched forward, pinning him against another truck a few feet away. Schuerman suffered a crushed chest, authorities said.

Wounded Knee Case Appeal Is Dismissed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals dismissed a government appeal Friday from a lower court acquittal of charges against two men involved in the Wounded Knee, S.D., Indian occupation in 1973.

The court said it had no jurisdiction to hear the case in which Gregorio Jaramillo and Michael Eugene Sturdevant were acquitted of charges of interfering with U.S. marshals and FBI agents on March 9, 1973, during the occupation.

The two men had been tried in Nebraska. The government had appealed on the grounds that the district court order was actually a dismissal of charges and therefore could be appealed. The government also said federal law allows appeals in cases where the Fifth Amendment double jeopardy clause is not violated.

The appeals court ruled that the district court's disposition was based on facts presented at the trial and was thus an acquittal.

It also ruled that to remand the case to a trial court for further findings would subject the defendants "to the same hazards incurred in a second trial that are clearly prohibited" by the double jeopardy clause.

Nebraska Pilot Killed In Crash On Birthday

Olathe, Kan. (UPI) — The chief pilot for a Nebraska electronics firm was killed on his 60th birthday Friday when the plane he was piloting crashed at the Johnson County Airport.

Authorities said Harold Hessenflow was making an instrument landing in adverse weather conditions when the twin-engine plane owned by Dale Electronics of Columbus, Neb., crashed.

Hessenflow had been a Dale pilot for 15 years. He lived in Columbus.

Authorities said Hessenflow was en route from Oklahoma City to Columbus and had attempted to land in Olathe to pick up a passenger.

From 1954 to 1961, Hessenflow served as supervisor of navigation facilities for the Nebraska Aeronautics Department in Lincoln. During World War II, he was a pilot in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Strasheim Credits Wrestling

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Tom Stasheim isn't the type to talk in superlatives. That is, until someone brings up wrestling.

Then the Lincoln East junior's eyes begin to sparkle. He credits his success in football and in the classroom to his disciplined work on the mat.

"I can't think of anything in my life that's benefitted me more than wrestling," says Strasheim, the Spartans' 145-pound standout who'll take a 12-2 record into Saturday's Trans-Nebraska Conference meet at Northeast.

"If it weren't for wrestling, I never would have gone this far in football," admits Strasheim, a standout middle guard on East's state championship team last fall.

"I was a rather chunky kid in eighth grade," Tom explains. "I weighed about 125 pounds. I went down to 110 that year, grew four inches and lost all my flab."

"Wrestling helped me become an athlete," reasons Strasheim. "I'd played on the B team in midget football. After wrestling, I came back the next year and started on the city runnerup team in the A division."

"Without wrestling," Tom declares, "I couldn't have made that type of jump and gone on like I have in football.

"In wrestling," he adds, "you're the only one out there. Winning and losing is entirely up to you. You can't blame anyone else. You can't credit anyone else."

"Accepting that type of responsibility helped my whole mental attitude — not only towards sports, but towards life," Tom relates.

"I've become more positive in everything I do," he adds. "I can't begin to explain how much it's changed my mental outlook."

"Wrestling made me want to do something more than just average," says Strasheim, who ranks in the upper fourth of his class academically.

Strasheim's midget football coaches, Pat Mulligan and Pooch Roper, suggested he try wrestling to improve his agility.

"It came really nice when I started," Tom recalls. "I won my first six matches and that makes it more interesting. I joined Newt Copple's Nebraska Olympic Club. That helped, too."

Tom's two losses this season were inflicted by Lincoln Southeast's Rich Hill and Columbus' Mike Rice.

East coach Jim Holechek considers Stasheim a prime contender for state-wide 145-pound honors. "He's among the top five or six and if he wants it bad enough, he has a shot at it (state championship)," allows Holechek.

The Spartan coach notes that Strasheim set a school record for takedowns in one season earlier this week in a dual meet against Beatrice.

In eight duals with three remaining this season, Strasheim has been credited with 21 takedowns. The former East record of 18 was held by Len Dickinson, twice a state champion at 145 and 155 pounds.

The takedown record, concedes Holechek, "has to be taken with a grain of salt because you could get a takedown in a match and ride your opponent the rest of the way."

"But getting 21 takedowns shows some ability, too," adds Holechek. "Tom's really quick with his hands and his feet."

North Platte is the favorite in the Trans-Nebraska meet with Grand Island forecast as its closest challenger. Three Lincoln teams — East, Northeast and Southeast — figure to battle for third. Lincoln High and Hastings also will compete.

Competition begins at noon Saturday on the Northeast High stage with second round competition scheduled to start at 3 p.m.

Championship finals and consolation finals start at 7 p.m.

Another 648 Series Would Suit Stoner

By BOB MOYER

Dot Stoner always has a good time bowling in the city tournament. But another 648 series would make it that much more fun.

It was a 648 bowled several weeks ago at Hollywood that gave Dot the top women's series bowled this fall.

"I was really tickled with it," says Dot. "I was just numb, to say the least. I don't feel I'm that good a bowler so it was really quite a thrill."

As exciting as it was for Dot to roll the 648, she says bowling a 612 series in the national WIBC tournament rivals it.

"I don't consider myself a particularly good tournament bowler," she says. "So it's especially exciting when I can do well."

Dot currently bowls in three leagues with averages ranging between 157 and 167.

"Concentration is really the most important thing in bowling, well," says Dot. "Plus, I've just got one way to bowl and if the lanes aren't right, I'm in trouble. Oh, I can adjust some but if I have to deviate too much it's hard for me to bowl well."

Dot is very active in the city women's bowling association. She takes special pride in the growth of the sport amongst the gals.

"Every year the women get a little better," says Dot. "I look for especially good scores this year."

With the women splitting into Class A and B divisions for singles and doubles this year for the first time, a record number of gals have entered the individual competition.

"The two division setup has encouraged many women to get into the tournament who didn't bowl before," says Dot. "I think it's a great thing for bowling."

"The city tournament is always the high spot of the season and the more girls in the tournament the better it is," she concludes.

The tournament will begin today and end Sunday, Feb. 9 after a nine-day run.

The women will bowl singles and doubles at Plaza and team competition will be at Bowl-Mor.

The men's division will have singles and doubles at Hollywood and the team event at Parkway.

Here is a look at this fall's top scores and past scratch champions:

Young Track Team Faces Test

By DAVE STETTER

Lawrence, Kan. — Nebraska's indoor track team will try to answer a big question mark here Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in a triangular meet with Kansas and Southern Illinois.

The question facing the Cornhusker track team is: just how good are we?

"Since this is our first meet of the season, everything is really a question mark," Husker coach Frank Sevigne said. "It's really difficult to gauge how good a team is until it competes against someone."

Some earlier stories this month indicated Sevigne is taking a gloomy outlook toward this year's Nebraska squad because of inexperience. Sevigne denies any such attitude.

"I've read a lot of things I was supposed to have said," Sevigne noted. "But that's not the way I feel at all. I know we're inexperienced, but I think we'll be very competitive. And I don't think the outlook is gloomy."

Steve Jepsen, a 6-3, 245-pounder from Papillion is the only senior on the squad. Jepsen was honored by his teammates by being named the team captain for the 1975 season.

A weightman, Jepsen finished second in last year's Big Eight outdoor meet in the discus event with a 171-5 effort. He'll concentrate on the shot during the indoor season.

"Steve has made a lot of progress in a short time in the shot," said coach John Korky, Sevigne's assistant coach who works with the field event men. "This is the first year he's ever tried the event and has been throwing well in practice."

Kansas will be holding its first meet on a new 220-yard indoor track which caused Korky to observe, "the place will probably be filled with people which could make things hard on some of our younger people."

"And Kansas people are

Kearney Belts Peru, 95-57

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—Kearney State dealt the 18th consecutive loss of the season to Peru State College here Friday night.

Kearney State rode a balanced scoring attack to its 15th win of the season in 17 starts.

Charley Peterson led five players in double figures with 13 points and Dan Parker had 12 for Peru State.

The entire 14-man Kearney State squad scored for the Antelopes.

PERU STATE (57)—Hanson 10, Hoegh 10, Mort 4, Fieskowski 4, Parker 12, Herbst 3, Craig 11.

KEARNEY STATE (95)—Curtis 11, Dillard 10, Keller 12, Hahn 2, Rolland 10, Kobza 2, Christiansen 6, Mohanna 7, Ritzdorf 2, Kilgus 6, Kruse 2, Kropp 10, Backus 2, Peterson 13.

Early Husker Dies At 90

Former Nebraska quarterback Harold T. "Pip" Cooke, 90, died at Fort Wayne, Ind. Tuesday morning.

Cooke was known as Nebraska's bold, bantam quarterback of 1906, '07 and '08. He set up a controversial winning touchdown against Iowa State in 1908 in Omaha with a record crowd of 8,000 fans.

talking like they have a team which will be a contender for the conference title."

The Jayhawks have competed in two meets already, and lead the first Big Eight Conference track charts in four events.

Cliff Wiley leads the league in the 60-yard dash with a .06:1 clocking, Waddell Smith's .48:1 time in the 440-yard dash is the Big Eight's best, Steve Stone leads the shot with a heave of 57-2½ and Danny Seay has sailed 25-9¼ in the long jump.

Sevigne said several Cornhuskers have looked sharp in practice, with last spring's Big Eight outdoor 440-yard champ Chuck Malito regaining form after a successful year on the Husker football team.

Other athletes Sevigne praised

ER, GOTTA HANG UP...MR. SWENSON WANTS $30 FOR PLOWING OUT OUR DRIVEWAY.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
